DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okano et al. (US 5,448,324) in view of Renner et al. (US 5,428,659, of record).

Okano teaches a sheet media package 1 wherein the package is light tight. The package may be within a light tight pack cartridge 8, the cartridge including an open tray 22 for holding the sheet media, the tray able to slide in and out of the cartridge, therefore sealing and resealing the sheet media within the cartridge.

Okano fails to suggest the package or cartridge as having a transponder with a read/write memory for communicating data relevant to the contents of the package or cartridge with a transceiver in an apparatus.

Renner teaches a cartridge 1 holding light sensitive recording film material, the cartridge containing a memory 6 and coupler 3 functioning as a transponder for transmitting radio signals to a cassette identification device 2. The memory of the transponder can be read from and written to via receiver circuits 44, 45, 46, and transmitter circuits 41, 42, 43, respectively. The data within the memory of the "transponder" can consist of a plurality of information pertaining to identification of the cartridge or contents of the cartridge, which would include any sheet film data or data about the status of the cartridge (see figures 1, 2, and 6, abstract, col. 2, lines 49-63 and col. 5, lines 14-26).

Art Unit: 2876

It would have obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the package or cartridge with a transponder. It is common in the art for printing devices, such as thermal printers within a printer or camera, to have transponders attached to detachable devices that are used within said printer. Film, paper, or toner cartridges are known in the art at this time to have bar codes present thereon, allowing the camera or printer to identify the cartridge, ensuring the cartridge is of the proper type and status for use within. A radio transponder simply provides another means of communicating such data to the camera or printer, affording radio wave technology instead of an image or light scanner. It also would have been an obvious expedient to provide the transponder within either the package or cartridge, as either position would effectively communicate with the receiving device.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ishiduka et al. (US 6,217,019 B1) and Hirano et al. (US 6,246,466) teaches sheet packages with communicative indicia thereon.
